

The Water Cycle

Water is always on the move. The Sun's energy causes water to evaporate from oceans, rivers and lakes into the atmosphere. Plants and animals also release water vapour into the atmosphere as they breathe. When the atmosphere cools, water vapor condenses; making clouds that can produce rain or snow. Water is recycled in its different forms as ice, liquid and vapour.

